

IOWA HUNGER DIRECTORY

The Iowa Hunger Directory profiles over 500 organizations fighting hunger in all 99 Iowa counties. It serves as a comprehensive platform for those seeking to engage and collaborate in this critical endeavor. The Directory includes a description of each organization along with contact information and a brief explanation of how Iowans can engage with them in eliminating hunger at home and abroad.

Message from the President

In looking back over my 20 years of leading the World Food Prize Foundation, one of the accomplishments that has great meaning for me was founding the Iowa Hunger Summit and establishing the Iowa Hunger Directory.

It was enormously rewarding to be able to have Iowa's four living Governors pictured together with Dr. Norman Borlaug at the inaugural Hunger summit in 2007. The photo taken at that time more eloquently than anything else, conveyed the deep bi-partisan commitment our political leaders have to alleviating human suffering due to hunger and malnutrition.

The Iowa Hunger Directory was a natural outgrowth of that initiative. I was motivated by a desire to be able to gather the information to accurately reflect the combined efforts of private, civic, religious, and social organizations to combat hunger both at home and abroad.

We have been enormously gratified that since its creation in 2012, nearly 500 Iowa organizations representing all 99 counties have joined the Directory.

1. To provide a central location to record all of the money, food, medicine, volunteer hours and any other form of assistance that private Iowa-based organizations contribute to fighting hunger both at home and abroad
2. Provide an easily accessible site where Iowans in all 99 counties can be alerted to hunger alleviation events taking place in their community
3. Demonstrating the incredible generosity of the citizens of Iowa in seeking to alleviate the plight of suffering people around the world and around our state.

In issuing the 2019 Iowa Hunger Directory, we do so recalling the legacy of two of Iowa's greatest humanitarian leaders: the late Nobel Peace Prize Laureate and World Food Prize founder Dr. Norman E. Borlaug who died 10 years ago in 2009 and former Governor Robert D. Ray who passed away last year.

As some may know, after his trip to the Thai-Cambodian border in 1979, Governor Ray created Iowa SHARES - Iowa Sends Help to Aid Refugees and End Starvation- with bipartisan support and the involvement of all major religions. To recall this exceptional state-wide humanitarian endeavor, and to inspire future humanitarian efforts, in 2013, we created the Robert D. Ray Iowa SHARES Humanitarian Award.

With Dr. Norman Borlaug and former Governor Robert Ray as our inspiration, and such great Iowa heroes as George Washington Carver, Herbert Hoover, Jesse Field Shambaugh, the Mother of 4-H, and Henry A. Wallace serving as avatars of humanitarian endeavors, Iowans have an amazing array of leaders to emulate. The one theme that unites all Iowans is the pride we share in feeding people and alleviating hunger around our state and around the world.

The organizations listed in the Hunger Directory therefore represent an amazing amalgamation of passionate humanitarians carrying forward Dr. Borlaug's, Governor Ray's and our state's historic legacy, and thereby demonstrating that Iowa truly is the "Hunger Fighting Capital of America."

Thank you for your interest and for all that you do to eradicate hunger, poverty and malnutrition. You make me so proud to be an Iowan.

Sincerely,

Amb. Kenneth M. Quinn

Message About the 2019 Iowa Hunger Directory

Thank you for this opportunity to share your stories with Iowa. We are incredibly inspired by the work that you do to alleviate hunger across the state of Iowa and around the world. The Iowa Hunger Directory is a resource for community members and organizations to further engage in efforts to collaborate and participate in the singular goal of ending hunger in our communities and throughout the world.

Launched in 2012, the Iowa Hunger Directory highlights and promotes the hunger fighting efforts of over 500 nonprofit, business and civic organizations and provides Iowans with tools and resources to discover new opportunities to become involved in the fight to end hunger. There is no cost to be part of the Iowa Hunger Directory, which is built using a "relational" model that requires consent for each member to be included.

A NEW KIND OF FOOD PANTRY

By Jenna Cornick, DMARC Multimedia Storytelling Intern

A mom peruses the pantry, carefully selecting food items from the shelves and handing them to her children, who proceed to pass the fruits, veggies, cans and boxes to a volunteer at the "checkout" cart.

The food pantry at West Des Moines Human Services, home to the Food Pantry 2.0 pilot program, now looks quite different from your average pantry.

What began as a $30,000 award-winning idea has transformed into an experience which provides practical solutions to issues generally faced by food pantries, including language barriers and the challenge of providing fresh food for clients. "The issues we are seeing are solvable if funds and efforts are diverted to the right streams," said

Daniel Beck, DMARC Food Pantry Network Assistant Director.

Making the Healthy Choice the Easy Choice

Food Pantry 2.0 is a point-based system developed by a certified nutritionist. Points are allotted to families each month based on household size.

The point-based system tackles many problems, one being the fact that in most circumstances, high caloric, unhealthy options are the more cost efficient options.

"The new system that we're using with the points has been a huge success with the customers," said Jim Macon, a volunteer who has served at West Des Moines Human Services for the last 4 years. "Now they can choose to eat healthier foods because the healthier foods are less costly point-wise than the not-so-healthy foods."

Allowing More Pantry Visits Every Month

The point system additionally allows families greater freedom in visits. Rather than only permitting one visit per month, the new system makes it possible for the pantry to serve a client multiple times per month, so long as they still have points remaining.

"It's easier to keep track. They have the points and it's nice that I don't have to do it all at one time. I could [visit] a couple times if I needed to or grab something here and there," said Michelle McCuddin, visiting the food pantry to feed eight children and two grandbabies.

"It's probably only 10 to 15 percent [of visitors] that spend all their points in their first visit. That's been the most smashing success of this. People are able to break it up if it's a transportation issue, you know, they're not carrying 80 to 90 pounds of food onto a bus or something like that," said Beck.

Visitors to the food pantry at West Des Moines Human Services get there a variety of ways. Some ride bikes, some walk, and some even use a wheelchair to get there. "Even those families with a vehicle are still breaking up their points. If you live on a third floor apartment, that's a lot of groceries to carry up if you've got 200 points for the month," said Stephanie Corbett, the food pantry coordinator at West Des Moines Human Services.

Overcoming Language Barriers

Another improvement of Food Pantry 2.0 has been translating intake questions and other commonly used phrases into 14 different languages.

"Quite often," said Macon, "[clients] will bring another member of their family, and in many cases, it's the young son or young daughter that can speak English, because they're going to school here now, and the parents do not speak it very well."

Safwan Abdullah spent a year translating for the U.S. Army, so his English is fairly strong. He had a successful career as a university professor in a beautiful part of Iraq. Yet, his home was destroyed and possessions stolen as the political system gave way to violence closer to home.

"Since we first [visited the food pantry] last year, we found good people. Good things from the staff from the administration. So, [words are] not enough to tell them thank you. I hope I [can] do more and more things to give them for their help, their assistance. I don't know how to thank them," said Abdullah.

Abdullah's wife accompanied him to the food pantry. She does not speak much English, but was sure to say "thank you" to the volunteers as they walked out.

Throughout the day students applied various scientific methods to real-world issues facing people around the world and packaged over 10,000 meals for Then Feed Just One programs in Honduras!

Heartland Youth Institute, Graceland University

At the Heartland Youth Institute students were introduced to local hunger-fighting organizations through on-site projects at the Lamoni Food Pantry and Lamoni Thrift Center.

Later in the day, students heard from the Executive Director of Self Help International, Nora Tobin, and further engaged in a case study activity that connected school feeding programs in the United States with those constructed in Bangladesh. With this activity students were encouraged to find similarities between the programs in both countries.

Northeast Iowa Youth Institute, Hawkeye Community College

At the Northeast Iowa Youth Institute students were introduced to hunger-fighting career paths in technology, agriculture, international business, veterinary medicine and more through interactive activities with Hawkeye faculty. They also had the opportunity to partner with the Northeast Iowa Food Bank in assembling over 2,000 nutritious backpack kits that were distributed across their 16 county service area.

The Northeast Iowa BackPack Program provides chronically hungry children with backpacks filled with non-perishable, nutritious, kid-friendly, shelf-stable food to sustain them over weekends and school holidays. For more information on the BackPack Program, click here.

2018 IOWA YOUTH INSTITUTE

The World Food Prize Iowa Youth Institute brought together over 300 students from 135 high schools at Iowa State University to explore critical global food security issues and discover academic and career paths in STEM fields. Students were immersed into the world of food insecurity and interacted with world-renowned faculty experts and business leaders.

The Iowa Youth Institute has reached over 64 percent of all Iowa high schools since its inauguration in 2011, and has sought to inspire Iowa high school students to focus on global issues and opportunities in STEM. This innovative experience encourages students to explore academic and career paths in fields related to STEM, food security, agriculture and global development and aims to inspire the next generation of leaders through research presentations and networking with global experts.

Interested students select a developing country and write an essay about a key factor affecting its food security. The paper should explain typical living conditions, the selected factor and potential solutions. Students then present their ideas at the Iowa Youth Institute, participate in interactive activities in labs and classrooms on campus, and interact with innovative professors and business leaders from across the state. All participants are eligible to earn a $500 scholarship to Iowa State University's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, as well as opportunities for international internships through the World Food Prize.

Since its inception, Iowa State University has awarded over $250,000 to students participating in World Food Prize programming, ensuring that young leaders have access to a high-quality education, professional mentors, and are prepared to tackle our world's toughest issues in hunger and poverty.

"I commend you for being here, for embracing the desire to improve the global food supply, and for wanting to take action on behalf of people you might never know," said Dr. Chavonda Jacobs-Young, Administrator and Acting Deputy Under Secretary REE, USDA during her morning keynote presentation. "You, as a generation, are important to USDA, because you will be the consumers, the employees, and the leaders

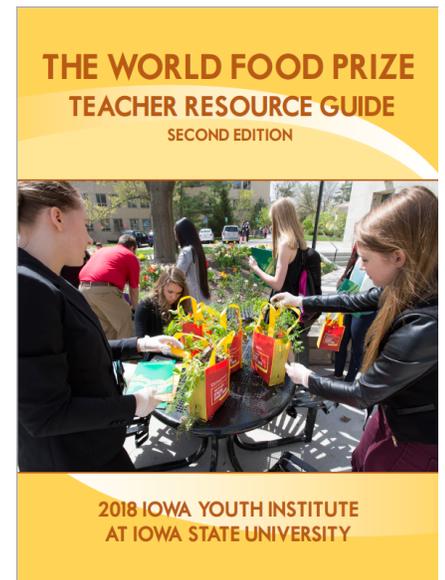

TEACHER RESOURCE GUIDE

We are continually amazed by the diverse and innovative approaches that educators across Iowa are taking to support their students in contributing to the fight against hunger. With the hopes of further supporting Iowa's educators we have created this teacher resource guide for three important reasons

1. To provide educators with hands-on learning opportunities that also meet curriculum standards
2. Share tips and advice from educators who have implemented these projects
3. Connect educators with non-profit leaders who are working to address hunger needs in your community

As we continue to educate and inspire Iowa's next generation of hunger fighters, we hope that you will share this resource with those in your community.

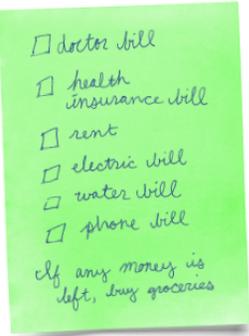

We additionally are always looking to expand our resources, so please be sure to share your thoughts and ideas with us!

SENIOR HUNGER CAMPAIGN

No senior should have to worry about running out of food.

You may be hearing some buzz about senior food insecurity. While it's not discussed often enough, seniors throughout Iowa are sometimes faced with the difficult decision of whether to buy food or pay for other expenses like medications.

To shed light on this well-hidden problem, the Iowa Senior Hunger Partnership, in collaboration with the Iowa Department of Public Health, launched a statewide media campaign May 21.

The campaign includes a 30-second radio spot featuring a senior woman sharing her experience with food insecurity--and encouragement to call 2-1-1 to find additional food resources.

Radio spots will play for five weeks. Posters and rack cards (pictured) have been distributed for partners to display and hand out. The print materials promote three call centers that are working together to reduce senior hunger: 2-1-1, LifeLong Links and the Iowa Food Assistance Hotline.

NUTRITION CHAMPIONS WIN 2018 WORLD FOOD PRIZE

Drs. Lawrence Haddad and David Nabarro were announced as the 2018 World Food Prize Laureates during a ceremony at the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The Prize rewards their individual but complementary global leadership in elevating maternal and child undernutrition within the food security and development dialogue at national and international levels with the result of reducing the world's number of stunted children by 10 million between 2012 and 2017.

"Like Dr. Norman Borlaug before them, Drs. Haddad and Nabarro have dedicated their careers to reducing hunger and malnutrition," said Bill Gates, co-chair of the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. "Their work has deepened our understanding of nutrition's impact not only on individual health, but on human capital and economic growth - compelling leaders in countries across the world to invest in evidence-based solutions."

A pioneer in food policy research, Dr. Haddad brought the issue of nutrition to the forefront by using both economic and medical research to convince development leaders to make child nutrition an urgent priority in the global food security agenda while serving as head of the Institute of Development Studies (IDS) in the United Kingdom from 2004 to 2014. From 2014 to 2016, Dr. Haddad prompted further investment in nutrition by co-chairing the Global Nutrition Report, an annual review of the state of the world's progress on nutrition that encouraged greater transparency and accountability among more than 100 stakeholders who had pledged $23 billion to the fight against malnutrition. Dr. Haddad now serves as Executive Director of the Global Alliance for Improved Nutrition (GAIN), where he continues to lead private and public sector partners in improving nutrition outcomes.

As head of the UN High Level Task Force on Global Food Security in 2008 to 2014 and Coordinator of the United Nation's Scaling Up Nutrition (SUN) Movement in 2010 to 2014, Dr. Nabarro united 54 countries and one Indian state under the SUN Movement to implement evidence-based policies and fight child malnutrition in South Asia and Africa. Many participating countries reported a significant decline in the number of stunted children after adopting SUN guidelines. Dr. Nabarro continues to oversee SUN through his service on its advisory Lead Group.

"I dedicate this World Food Prize to the leaders, scientists, and activists who are championing the principle that feeding the world is no longer enough-we must now nourish it," Dr. Haddad said.

"Good nutrition underpins individual health and national economic development. It reflects respect for human rights and a commitment to future generations. One in three people are malnourished, with no country exempt. Undernutrition - whether growth failure or micronutrient malnutrition - is falling too slowly and conditions such as diabetes, hypertension and obesity are skyrocketing with poor diet at the core of these trends. That's why the organization I lead, the Global Alliance for Improved Nutrition (GAIN), is striving to making nutritious and safe food more available, affordable and desirable for all - especially for the most vulnerable," Dr. Haddad said.

"Great scientists like Dr. Norman Borlaug, and the Laureates that he supported, have always said that wisdom lies with the people," Dr. Nabarro said. "As I receive this wonderful award, I reflect on the thousands of courageous women and men who are working at local level for food systems that are well-functioning and just. They have the wisdom needed to reduce levels of malnutrition or diet-related illness. They can devise food systems that benefit people and the planet and that contribute to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. They are the transformation leaders of the future."

The World Food Prize is the most prominent global award for individuals whose breakthrough achievements alleviate hunger and promote global food security. This year's $250,000 prize will be divided equally between the two recipients.

REMEMBERING GOVERNOR RAY

Former Iowa Governor Robert D. Ray passed away on July 8 at 89. One of Iowa's greatest humanitarians, Governor Ray had a special relationship with the World Food Prize serving as one of the honorary Co-Chairs of the Iowa Hunger Summit. World Food Prize President, Ambassador Kenneth Quinn, who served on Ray's staff delivered a Eulogy at the memorial service for the Governor. It is printed below to remind Hunger Directory members of Governor Ray's extraordinary leadership in alleviating human suffering, especially of those starving and dying.

Eulogy for Governor Robert D. Ray

By

Ambassador Kenneth M. Quinn
First Christian Church
Des Moines, Iowa
July 13, 2018

One of the first refugees Governor Ray rescued and resettled in Iowa was a young man who was trapped in one of the most treacherous and threatening environments on earth - Washington D.C. That person he rescued was me.

He brought me and my wife Le Son and our children home to Iowa where we became part of Governor Ray's extended family. For 4 years, I worked closely with the Governor on many of his humanitarian endeavors.

A few weeks ago, I was with Governor and Mrs. Ray recalling many of these experiences - and a flood of memories came back about when we were together, including:

-- In the winter of 1975, at the celebration for the Tai Dam refugees from Laos, whom he had rescued and resettled together in Iowa in order to preserve their culture, language and kinship.

The Tai Dam had written to every Governor in America, but Robert Ray was the only Governor to answer their plea. He convinced

President Ford to permit all of the Tai Dam to come to Iowa. They have been here ever since.

-- Or, on a cold January night in 1979, while he and I watched the video of a boat filled with Vietnamese "boat people" refugees, who had escaped from Communist oppression only to be pushed back out to sea by local officials fearful of being inundated because no country in the world, including the United States, was accepting any more refugees from Indochina. We watched in horror as their boat broke up in the waves, with the refugees drowning before our eyes.

This so impacted Governor Ray that he wrote late that very night to the President, saying that Iowa would double the number of refugees it had resettled if only the President would reopen America's doors.

His letter and lobbying in Washington worked! America's doors were reopened...

MARSHALLTOWN STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Last month our staff had the pleasure of welcoming ELL students from Marshalltown High School to our headquarters in Downtown Des Moines. The two groups of students who joined us gave presentations based on our Iowa Youth Institute prompt of solving food security related problems in developing countries.

Each group compiled an in-depth presentation on the solutions they formulated to ensure food security in Ethiopia and Venezuela

It was truly remarkable to see how the students addressed they varying challenges of food insecurity in Ethiopia and Venezuela and all on staff were encouraged by the depth of the students' research. They were all so enthusiastic about what they had learned throughout their research!

In addition to researching the challenges Ethiopia and Venezuela face in obtaining food security, each group was prompted to find sustainable solutions to the issues they had addressed. These solutions were based on the students' own critical thinking, in tangent with their research on solutions being implemented in other countries.

It was quite outstanding to see where each group found inspiration and how their own personal experiences have directly impacted the outcomes of their proposed solutions.

Altogether our staff was thoroughly uplifted to hear from such an influential group of young people who have truly shown the potential they have in feeding their world.

HELP CURB THE SUMMER HUNGER TIDE

For nearly 200,000 Iowa children, summer is not solely about fun and games. It's also about hunger. In the absence of meals served during the regular school day, these children face the reality of days without access to healthy meals and snacks. To help curb this hunger tide, local sponsors and partner organizations are needed for the federally funded Summer Food Service Program aimed at children in low-income areas of the state.

How can your organization get involved?

Choose to sponsor a program. Schools, local government agencies, camps, faith-based and other private non-profit organizations may become program sponsors. If your organization already provides services to the community, has capable staff and good management practices to run a food service, you can administer the Summer Food Service Program. Choose to be a meal service site under another organizations sponsorship. Sites may be located in a variety of settings, including parks, community buildings, churches, migrant centers, schools, and apartment complexes to name just a few. Do you provide activities or programming to youth over the summer? You may be well positioned to offer summer meals in conjunction with the services you already provide.

Promote summer meal sites in your area. Help spread the word to children and families in your community about the time and location of summer meal sites. Promote summer meals via your organization newsletters, bulletins, and website and hang banners and posters onsite.

Choose to partner with summer meal sites. Volunteer to provide activities for kids and teens or help to serve and supervise the meal service. Even if your organization cannot take on the responsibilities of a sponsor or site, you can team up with a sponsor to provide support to an existing program. Site programming can assist with bringing children back to the site in addition to keeping them mentally and physically active over the summer. Organizations can also partner by providing transportation for children to and from meal sites, a barrier for many locations.

In 2018, the summer food service program sponsors served 1,264,826 meals and snacks, 35,418 less meals/snacks than the previous summer. The need for program sponsors, site locations, and partner organizations is crucial to better meet the need of Iowa families.

Organizations interested in learning how to be involved are invited to register to participate in an informational webinar on February 28th from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

For more information, visit the Department's Summer Food Service Program webpage or contact Stephanie Dross at 515-281-4760 or stephanie.dross@iowa.gov.

GARDENING FOR GOOD

Last year, over 1,200 volunteers helped grow and donate approximately 180,000 lbs of fresh vegetables to food pantries in Iowa as part of Iowa Gardening for Good. This was the project's fifth year donating produce, such as: peppers, eggplant, cucumbers, cantaloupe, watermelon, sweet corn, zucchini and winter squash. Gardening for Good has established non-profit status, which enabled them to produce food for less than 18 cents a pound, along with the help of so many volunteers.

Growing Local!

Iowa Gardening for Good's mission is to help people learn about locally grown food. Iowans are interested in fresh and local produce but their experience is often limited to going to a farmer's market. The organization provides an opportunity that not only helps feed the hungry, but allows people to get hands-on experience planting or picking produce.

Planting Strategy

Iowa Gardening for Good employs strategies, such as using plastic mulch and watering with drip irrigation to reduce weeding. The result is a more pleasant and productive experience where volunteers can keep their focus on planting and harvesting. For most groups, they are able to tell how many plants or miles of rows they planted or how many pounds they harvested. Many volunteers find the opportunity to be a great experience they can participate in without the longer commitment of growing their own garden.

Running on Volunteer Power

Iowa Gardening for Good typically operates by scheduling groups or individuals to come and help several times a week to plant and harvest. Most interested groups signed up for 1-2 dates and were typically in groups of 5-30, but some were as large as 150. Some of the groups include, but aren't limited to, families, corporate groups, schools, churches, scout groups and summer programs. They even had groups from out of state and one all the way from Japan!

Where to Find Them

Iowa Gardening for Good's base location is located between Ames and Des Moines on a farm near Madrid, Iowa. They are open on Saturdays throughout the season for individuals wanting to drop in and help without prior sign up. During the week, they are usually looking for 2-3 additional groups to help and schedule these groups by appointment. Appointments can be accommodated any time of the day or evening. There is no cost to participate and volunteers do not need any special equipment. The organization welcomes kids of all ages come out, as long as they are accompanied by someone to supervise them.

Donations Matter

Because Iowa Gardening for Good donate all that's produced, they rely on donations to support their program. For each dollar they receive, their goal is to be able to produce and donate approximately 5 lbs. of locally grown produce for local food pantries.

MESSAGE FROM AMB. KENNETH QUINN ON THE BIRTH ANNIVERSARY OF DR. NORMAN BORLAUG

While Norman Borlaug's legacy is centered on his heroic efforts to confront and overcome hunger in foreign lands, it is insightful to understand that his earliest time coming face to face with hunger was not in Mexico but in the streets of Minneapolis.

When we were together, Norm told me about how as a student at the University of Minnesota he first came face to face with the issues of hunger as he watched it manifest on the streets of the Twin Cities during the Great Depression. Seeing homeless, hungry people sleep in the streets was an image that remained with him even 70 years later.

Throughout his career, whether he was working in Minnesota, Mexico, India or Pakistan, Norm felt the same urge to push the needle further.

Where hunger was prevailing Norm always felt himself impacted by the devastating effects that inevitably accompanied it. It was what drove him and caused him to work diligently throughout his life on the issues of plant disease, as he harnessed his abilities with plant breeding to ensure his active participation in alleviating human suffering.

Years after Borlaug's initial experience with hunger took place in Minnesota, the World Food Prize was awarded in 2008 to two individuals with midwest roots for their work with school feeding programs, Bob Dole and George McGovern. Both men, who despite their difference in political views, were united by their desire to directly confront hunger.

It was when they received the World Food Prize in the House Chambers of the Iowa State Capitol that each spoke of his own personal experiences he had had as a young boy during the Depression. Like Borlaug, Dole recalled the hungry and the homeless who would knock on his front door in Kansas pleading to work for food. McGovern too had recollections of his life back in South Dakota and of his mother sharing the religiously grounded songs urging him to greatness through the uplifting of others.

As we look forward to the celebration of what would be Dr. Borlaug's 105th Birthday on March 25, remembering the journeys of these three midwestern heroes should encourage us all to be motivated by their great legacies.

If Borlaug was here today as we celebrate what would have been his Birthday he would say that the most critical thing is to support the public research that is so desperately needed to ensure that we have the innovations that will allow us to meet the greatest challenge the world has ever seen, nutritiously and sustainably feeding a world that will have nearly 10 billion people by 2050.

USDA FOOD + NUTRITION SERVICE'S MIDWEST REGION

Effective October 1, 2019, the State of Iowa will move to the USDA Food and Nutrition Service's Midwest Region, joining Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, and Wisconsin in that region. This move is designed to more evenly distribute states among regions and to provide optimal customer service, a key objective of USDA Secretary Sonny Perdue.

In anticipation of this move, the Midwest Region asked us to share information on some networks it facilitates that may be of interest. You can find that information below. If you have questions about the networks or the realignment, please direct them to the identified Midwest Region Public Affairs staff.

USDA Midwest Healthcare Partners

A growing number of hospitals and health care providers have become interested in hunger/nutrition and in learning more about USDA nutrition programs and/or leveraging our programs. To facilitate these interests and activities, we created a USDA Midwest Healthcare Partners network in 2013. We hold hour-long conference calls three times annually and highlight up to four best practices/innovative models related to healthy food access, promoting nutrition, addressing hunger and/or related issues. We also send monthly email blasts that contain resources, grants, opportunities, and news related to these areas. You can find the most recent email blast here.

USDA Midwest Region GoodGreens Local Food System Network

This network of nearly 1500 individuals and organizations is primarily from the Midwest. GoodGreens seeks to support and/or establish local food systems and includes individuals, organizations, funders and businesses that represent every facet of local food systems—including community gardens, urban agriculture, healthy food access, farms, schools, food policy, distribution and everything in between. We hold monthly meetings in our office and send email blasts twice monthly that contain information, grants and resources for all of the areas listed above. Meetings are held 3-4 times per year from 10am – 12pm central time. Participation is in person or via webinar or phone, though many who are signed up don't attend regularly—or at all—but like to receive the email blasts. Interested persons can sign up to receive GoodGreens email blasts via the button at the bottom of the blast.

Midwest Farmers Market Partners

A USDA Food and Nutrition Service facilitated collaborative of Midwest farmers market coordinators, vendors, educators, federal nutrition program partners and community leaders that meet to discuss the challenges, successes, news, and events of interest to farmers markets. We send email blasts with news, grants, and related information approximately monthly and we hold webinars 3-4 times per year. Interested persons can sign up to receive email blasts via the button at the bottom of the blast.

DESCRIPTION

The American Red Cross, Serving Greater Iowa is operating in 94 of 99 counties in the state of Iowa with chapter offices located in; Des Moines, Sioux City, Cedar Rapids and Dubuque. Our mission is to prevent and alleviate suffering in the face of emergencies by mobilizing the power of volunteers and the generosity of donors. We ensure that those who suffer from a disaster have food, clothing and shelter needed during the immediate recovery process. The Red Cross has roughly 1,000 volunteers and 23 paid staff which enables us to have a presence in every community.

Resilient communities are able to prepare for, respond to and recover from disasters. Annually we respond to nearly 600 disasters in the state of Iowa, and while we support anyone who requests our services, it is the at-risk who are most often the benefactors of our services. Disasters do not impact everyone equally. Those at-risk, or who lack support mechanisms or savings, struggle to recover. Our clients are often the uninsured, elderly, low income and others who struggle to recover after a house-fire or other disaster.

We also deploy volunteers to large-scale disasters across the country. In 2017 we deployed over 200 volunteers to support Hurricane relief in 2017.

We provide a number of services for clients during the recovery process. We offer support during the disaster, including walking the client through the recovery process. We also issue cash assistance that can be used to purchase food or groceries or lodging, medicine or other necessary items for the immediate recovery process. Our 5 pillar services are Domestic Disaster Response, International Services (when called upon by the greater Red Cross Society Internationally), Health and Safety (Courses and Services), Services to the Armed Forces and Blood Services (collection and distribution of the nation's blood needs).

HOW TO HELP

Iowans can support the work of the American Red Cross through donations, volunteering and community partnerships.

We've also developed the Red Cross Gift of Grain Program which is unique to the Red Cross Serving Iowa to help us prepare for disasters through grain donations. Farmers will find Red Cross (Serving Greater Iowa) accounts at nearly every CoOp and Elevator in the state and both the CoOps and the Red Cross can provide a tax receipt for the grain donations. Please help us turn grain into groceries for those that have suffered from a disaster through donations of grain. The Red Cross, Serving Greater Iowa, can also accept donated land, equipment, livestock and stock gifts.

For more information or to become involved, please visit the Red Cross online or contact Mr. Bryce Sitter by email at bryce.sitter@redcross.org or by phone at 515-473-1284 (cell) or 515 246-6307 (office).

AmpleHarvest.org educates, encourages and enables America's home and community gardeners to donate their excess garden produce to local food pantries nationwide... including across Iowa.

All that we do and believe in is to solve hunger and malnutrition by eliminating the root cause: the waste of fresh food.

We do this by way of an elegant yet simple solution – combining the growers passion to not waste food and our technology, to enable billions of pounds of excess food to reach 1 out of every 4 food pantries nourishing millions of families nationwide.

Our solution is to educate and then enable local gardeners to donate that food. Your generous contribution helps more fresh food get to more hungry families. For Good.

HOW TO HELP

Iowans can learn more by viewing their TED Talk and press kit. Individuals can support the work of AmpleHarvest.org by making a donation or by activating a network in their community. Corporate cause marketing campaigns are also welcomed.

Digital Green is a global development organization that empowers smallholder farmers to lift themselves out of poverty by harnessing the collective power of technology and grassroots-level partnerships. We join forces with governments, private agencies and, most importantly, rural communities themselves to co-create digital solutions that are of the community and for the community. When farmers have the tools they need to connect with one another, they're far more likely to apply what they've learned on their farms and in their households – improving their own livelihoods and those of others in their community, in a manner that's nutrition-sensitive, climate-resilient, and inclusive.

DESCRIPTION

It's an Information and Communication Technology or Information Sharing start up, which is tightly tailored to host food donation information. It is used as an online platform where a Donor (organizations or individual) enters the information of his/her excessive, edible food, particularly the location and the time window of its availability. The needy (also called Consumer) also takes the best advantage of this online platform and finds the available donated food options in real-time in any region of interest. The Consumer can select the region of interest by entering the desired addressed. Thus, this online platform of eFeed-Hungers.com acts as bridge between food waste and hunger and intelligently assists the proper channeling of the food waste to the most appropriate people to quell their hunger and saves lives. The eFeed-Hungers.com is specifically designed and developed to encourage the food waste Donors to further deliver it to the most sought people. The eFeed-Hungers.com highly relies on citizen science and seeks strong participation of communities as inclusive efforts.

HOW TO HELP

Please provide financial support. Its very much needed to continue support to fight hunger.

DESCRIPTION

As a Christian response to world hunger, Growing Hope Globally, formerly Foods Resource Bank(FRB),links the grassroots energy and commitment of the U.S. agricultural community with the capability and desire of small farmers in developing countries to grow lasting solutions to hunger.

Growing Hope engages volunteers to raise money through "Growing Projects" for between 50-60 overseas programs a year. All of the programs focus on developing smallholder agriculture, often in the most remote and poorest regions of the world. Growing Projects are the heart and soul of Growing Hope and have helped us reach over 1.6 million people since the first Growing Projects were created in 1999.

HOW TO HELP

Iowans can support the work of Growing Hope by starting or joining a Growing Project in their community. A Growing Project is a group whose members work together to raise a crop or other commodity or hold fundraisers to help farmers overseas become self-sufficient. Growing Projects include revenue from field crops, cattle or dairy, pie auctions, pumpkin patches, Sunday school gardens, and more. Each member plays a unique role and contributes to the Growing Project in different ways by offering their time, talents or resources.

Iowans are encouraged to directly contact coordinator Mr. Steve Witt, to become involved with the Elvira IA Growing Project.

For more information about starting or joining a Growing Project, Iowans should call 888-276-4372 or email Von Tarverdi at info@growinghopeglobally.org.

DESCRIPTION

FoodCorps is creating a future in which every school is a healthy school, and every child is well-nourished and ready to learn. We believe that all children—regardless of race, class, or geography— have the right to healthy food. Serving alongside educators and community leaders, FoodCorps members partner with public schools to co-create a nourishing environment and positive food experiences for all students. Our AmeriCorps leaders deliver our program in high-need schools, focusing on:

Hands-On Lessons: They teach cooking, gardening and tasting since kids love foods they have grown and prepared themselves.

Healthy School Meals: They create a cafeteria that steers students towards the healthiest options and gets them excited to try new healthy foods.

A Schoolwide Culture of Health: They help the whole school community—everything from the teachers to the hallways to the bake sales—celebrate healthy food.

HOW TO HELP

In partnership with Iowa State Extension and Outreach Local Food Team, eleven FoodCorps members serve Iowa communities in Davenport, Oelwein, Postville, Ottumwa, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo and Des Moines. Community members, organizations, and local businesses are encouraged to connect with FoodCorps members for volunteer opportunities, farm to school resources, and information about the state's farm to school components of the SNAP-ed Pick a Better Snack program.

DESCRIPTION

The Growing Hope Foundation reduces hunger and poverty through the development of farmland in developing countries and training programs to train farmers in those countries how to farm effectively. The end goal is for communities in developing nations to be able to become more self-sustaining by learning how to make the land productive. Crops to be raised will not only provide food, but will also be marketed to provide income. They also support a variety of nonprofit organizations.

HOW TO HELP

Iowans can support the activities of the Growing Hope Foundation by donating to their programs through their website. The Growing Hope Foundation will most likely be soliciting volunteers in the future to go to the places in which they are working with farmers and communities in the development and training process. Volunteers would be helping to train and providing support by laboring alongside the farmers of the community.

DESCRIPTION

The Iowa Afterschool Alliance supports high quality programs that serve students outside of the traditional school day. They work to ensure that all Iowa children, youth, and families have access to quality out-of-school time opportunities in their community by:

- Developing policies and partnerships that build capacity at the state and local levels for high-quality afterschool programming,
- Connecting local providers with the resources and tools necessary to provide high-quality afterschool programming, and;
- Communicating critical data on the need and impact of afterschool programming to the public, partners, and other vital stakeholders.

The Iowa Afterschool Alliance maintains the Iowa Afterschool Opportunities Statewide Directory. Many of these afterschool opportunities alleviate hunger in the short-term by providing free meals and healthy snacks to participating children and reduce hunger over the long term by improving educational and career outcomes for the children they serve.

HOW TO HELP

Afterschool programs often depend on the valuable contributions of members of the community. Afterschool program providers and allied organizations can support the mission of the Iowa Afterschool Alliance by joining as members or as funding partners. Individuals can support this work by becoming advocates for afterschool educational programming, volunteering at an afterschool program in their community, or becoming a mentor through the Iowa Mentoring Partnership.

Individuals and organizations are encouraged to email Ms. Rich to learn more about the work of the Iowa Afterschool Alliance and to become involved.

DESCRIPTION

Iowa Gardening for Good is a 501c3 that focuses on involving people in growing things of value for a good cause. This project has been operating for 5 years and has organized a number of projects striving to involve more people in agricultural production and trying to link them to various types of service projects. Currently, their largest project is growing vegetables and donating them to the food pantries.

In 2018, over 1,200 volunteers participated in growing over 180,000 lbs that was donated to food pantries. We rely on a wide range of volunteers to help ranging from schools to corporate volunteers. Typically we have 2-3 groups a week come and help plant or pick produce. How to Help: The primary labor source is volunteers of all ages. Throughout the growing season, dates are available for volunteers to come help plant, tie up plants or pick produce.

HOW TO HELP

Because we donate everything we grow, we are dependent upon financial donations. Our goal is to produce 5 pounds of produce for every dollar we receive. To learn more on how to donate financially see our website at www.iowagardeningforgood.com/donation. Iowans are encouraged to contact the Blackmer family for more information or to help volunteer.

Iowa IPL's Cool Congregations program has trained representatives of over 275 congregations across Iowa to activate their care for creation by helping members calculate and reduce their household energy use by roughly 10% per year. Their Food · Faith · Climate program teaches participants how their food choices impact climate change and how their faith traditions call them to respond with practical solutions. As part of the Food · Faith · Climate program, congregations sometimes choose to grow food to donate to local food pantries and soup kitchens.

DESCRIPTION

As a Christian response to world hunger, Growing Hope Globally, formerly Foods Resource Bank (FRB), links the grassroots energy and commitment of the U.S. agricultural community with the capability and desire of small farmers in developing countries to grow lasting solutions to hunger.

Growing Hope engages volunteers to raise money through "Growing Projects" for between 50-60 overseas programs a year. All of the programs focus on developing smallholder agriculture, often in the most remote and poorest regions of the world. Growing Projects are the heart and soul of Growing Hope and have helped us reach over 1.6 million people since the first Growing Projects were created in 1999.

HOW TO HELP

Iowans can support the work of Growing Hope by starting or joining a Growing Project in their community. A Growing Project is a group whose members work together to raise a crop or other commodity or hold fundraisers to help farmers overseas become self-sufficient. Growing Projects include revenue from field crops, cattle or dairy, pie auctions, pumpkin patches, Sunday school gardens, and more. Each member plays a unique role and contributes to the Growing Project in different ways by offering their time, talents or resources.

Iowans are encouraged to directly contact coordinator Mr. Rick Porter to become involved with the Iowa Lakes IA Growing Project.

For more information about starting or joining a Growing Project, Iowans should call 888-276-4372 or email Von Tarverdi at info@growinghopeglobally.org.

Karadah Project International creates international problem-solving partnerships that increase understanding, skills and awareness of the world, particularly focused on Iraq and Afghanistan.

After two tours in Iraq as an Army Reserve Civil Affairs officer, LTC Rick Burns concluded that what is needed most in Iraq is not more money, but stronger mentoring and partnering relationships. Building on the Sister Cities International Friendship Partnership he helped establish at the end of his second tour in Iraq between Council Bluffs, Iowa and the Karadah District Council, Rick established the nonprofit Karadah Project International. Their mission is to build long-term partnering and mentoring relationships between individuals and groups in Iraq and the United States. They are also active in Afghanistan, where they work with the Shindand Women's Social Foundation to build sustainable goat herds for villagers in Khairabad.

DESCRIPTION

Leaf Nutrient, Inc. has been making a notable difference in the mental and physical health for malnourished children and adults in Mexico since 1988 with just 10 grams, or two teaspoons, of alfalfa extract concentrate added to their daily diet. This provides enough extra balanced protein, vitamins, and minerals for normal growth.

The children of families that participate are easily distinguished on the street from those whose families do not participate. They also do much better in school. Since entering the first village in rural Mexico, approximately 150 villages participate in LNI's program. Many of these are part of the Coahuila State Family Development Program, DIF. These villages benefit from the donation of sets of the unique crushing machines and the training to process the extract themselves. The extract has been included in noodles distributed to hundreds of families and as a part of the public school lunches. Every day, approximately 10,000 children in Mexico participate in the program with the inclusion of the concentrate in their typical Mexican dishes: tortillas, bread, rice, lemonade, soup, hot sauce, etc.

The simple village level process uses machines built in the country: the ladies clean and disinfect their alfalfa, they use the machines to crush it and to squeeze out the juice, and then they heat the juice so that the protein coagulate floats. This delicious coagulant juice concentrate, or extract, is composed of 50% balanced protein, chlorophyll, vitamins, and minerals. The leftover fiber pulp is fed to the family's goats and cattle with no loss of milk production. Since the farmers already grow alfalfa to feed their stock, the alfalfa concentrate could be considered almost "free."

Leaf Nutrient, Inc. is currently implementing this program in a partnership with Hands in Service Ministries and local communities for a model program to alleviate malnutrition on a broader scale by integrating the alfalfa cellular concentrate production with gardening and animal husbandry for an ecological, self-sustaining community farm.

An unrealized goal of LNI is to build a factory adjacent to a large dairy farm in both Mexico and the USA to provide a commercial source of dehydrated alfalfa juice concentrate that could be stored for one year. Additional funds and a new generation of volunteers are needed to expand this successful program. Leaf Nutrient, Inc. (LNI) is a charitable 501(c)(3) organization, founded in 1988 and incorporated in 1990 in the state of Wisconsin to combat malnutrition among children living in poverty in Mexico and other underdeveloped countries.

Many Hands works to create long-term sustainable change, strengthening families to transform Haitian communities. To accomplish this end-goal, they focus on solutions in Education, Leadership Development, Food and Agriculture, Safe Homes, Medical Assistance and Economic Development, reaching out to 30,000 people in the area of Pignon, Haiti.

Each year, Many Hands provides 1.5 million meals through their food and agricultural programs, supplying over 7.5 million meals in Haiti since 2011. These meals are supplied through short-term solutions, such as school feeding programs for 19 schools, and long-term solutions, such as an agronomy technical school, commercial gardens, and hydroponic greenhouses. In addition, they oversee a Husbandry Economic Program (H.E.P.), creating an educational saving accounts for families through the breeding, raising, and selling of goats for food consumption.

In 2017, Many Hands introduced their Love in Action initiative, a holistic program to walk with families for six years to rebuild, restore, and renew. The Rebuild stage focuses on the first 1,000 days of a baby's life, providing the necessary nutrition, health checks, and parent education for the child to be above the malnutrition line and fully developing in these critical days. In the Restore stage, the focus is on the cognitive development of the child, now 3-5 years old, and developing sustainability with the parents through economic, education, and spiritual development programs. At the end of this stage, every parent should be able to pay for their child's education, read and write, and be able to provide some income for their family. In the Renew stage, the focus is on multiplication of the learning within the community, providing programming to transform a community.

In the U.S., Many Hands operates two large thrift stores, located in Spencer, IA, and Grimes, IA, creating operational funding for local and global missions. Each year, over $20,000 is given back to local non-profits to address a variety of social issues, including childhood hunger.

Many Hands believes we are all called to transform together to be love in action in our broken worlds. They are one of nineteen non-profits that are Better Business Bureau certified, providing high-levels of transparency and accountability.

DESCRIPTION

Adorned with hair nets and armed with plastic scoops, The Outreach Program brings volunteers together to help fight food insecurity.

School groups and scout troops, local non-profits and churches, Rotary clubs and United Ways give their time to fill food pantries in Iowa and feed hungry people around the world.

The Outreach Program provides everything needed to host a meal packing event, from the fund-raising materials to the tape to seal the boxes of packaged meals. Volunteers form an assembly line, scooping and measuring ingredients into packages that are distributed without cost to local food banks and other organizations of the group's choice. Since The Outreach Program's inception in 2004, these volunteer-driven events have provided more than 440 million meals packaged to date.

Creating and securing sources of clean, potable water is a priority of The Outreach Program. Availability of unpolluted, disease-free water is essential to health and life.

Outreach Africa supplies medical care, water, food and education to the people of Tanzania. Please email for more information.

HOW TO HELP

Volunteer in The Outreach Program warehouse. There are always dishes to wash, trucks to load, supplies to sort and meal supplies to pack.

Plan a meal packing event to decrease food insecurity. Contact The Outreach Program for assistance!

Panera Bread of Iowa operates Panera Bread bakery-cafes throughout Iowa. They show their appreciation to the communities they serve not only in their bakery-cafes, but also by participating in charitable events, donating to local charities through their Operation Dough-Nation® program, and donating their end of the day bread to local food banks, pantries, and soup kitchens through their Day-End Dough-Nation program.

Panera welcomes the opportunity to support community events, fundraisers and other charitable efforts by providing in-kind bakery products and/or gift certificates when they are able. They have a special commitment to supporting Iowa schools' educational and fundraising goals.

Their Community Breadbox program ensures that cash donations from Panera Bread feed back directly to the community. Each bakery-cafe has a Community Breadbox collection container at each set of registers, encouraging customers to donate to a critical non-profit organization in the community. These cash donations are matched dollar-for-dollar by Panera Bread of Iowa and donated directly to the organization.

Schools and nonprofit organizations may request donations of bakery products or gift certificates online. Local community food banks or organizations that would like more information on how to potentially become involved in their Day-End Dough-Nation programs should contact John Kauffman, Marketing and Public Relations Manager, at jkauffman@paneraiowa.com.

Individuals who would like to contribute to their efforts to assist local non-profit organizations in the communities they serve, are encouraged to please look for the Community Breadbox collection containers at their neighborhood Panera Bread bakery-cafe.
